

PAYMENT SYSTEM AND SERVICES BILL, 2025

EXPLANATORY NOTES

The Payment System Act, Cap. 227B that is currently in force lacks a licensing regime and does not make provision for emerging non-bank payment and settlement services that are being driven by financial technology. There is, therefore, no explicit legislation under which non-bank payment and settlement service providers can be licensed to operate. Accordingly, this Bill seeks to repeal and replace the Payment System Act, Cap. 227B.

The objectives of this Bill are to:

- (i) introduce a comprehensive licensing regime calibrated to specific risks posed by the activities, through a new modular approach to regulation that facilitates growth in innovation and financial inclusion;
- (ii) broaden the scope of regulated activities to non-banks to accommodate a wider range of payment services and activities;
- (iii) strengthen consumer protection;
- (iv) engender confidence in the use of electronic payments; and
- (v) enhance safety and efficiency in the Eastern Caribbean Currency Union (ECCU) payment system and the capacity to maintain financial stability.

Since 2008, the payment services landscape has changed dramatically and the Eastern Caribbean Central Bank (the “Central Bank”) is keenly interested in nurturing a payment system environment to attract innovative payment services from non-bank service providers, in the interest of financial inclusion and the reduction in the use of cash. This Bill acknowledges the full scope of non-bank provision of payment services insofar as it defines classes of licences; provides for the issuance of regulations; clarifies the authority of the Central Bank in respect of oversight of the payment system; and makes provisions for data protection, governance, interoperability and innovation.

This Bill contains eleven (11) parts and seventy-two (72) clauses.

Part I provides for the preliminary provisions and contains clauses 1 to 3. Clause 1 of the Bill provides for the short title of the Act. Clause 2 of the Bill provides the interpretation provisions and includes the definitions of terms used throughout the Bill, such as “payment system” and “netting”. Clause 3 of the Bill establishes the purpose of the Act.

Part II of the Bill makes provision for administrative matters and contains clauses 4 to 12. Clause 4 of the Bill makes provisions for the functions of the Central Bank, which include monitoring and overseeing the payment system. Clause 5 of the Bill empowers the Central Bank to support the operations and participants of a payment system, including ownership and participation. Clause 6 of the Bill empowers the Central Bank to establish, own, operate or participate in the ownership of a system; act as a central counter-party; open and hold accounts for an operator or participant; and hold securities for clearing and settlement of transfers. Clause 7 of the Bill empowers the Central Bank to direct a payment service provider to enter into an arrangement with the operator of the payment system to achieve interoperability of the payment account with the payment system. Clause 8 of the Bill authorises the Central Bank to cooperate with other public authorities engaged in the regulation and supervision of financial institutions and other entities directly or indirectly involved in payment services and their operation.

Clause 9 of the Bill establishes the Eastern Caribbean Payments Council to advise the Central Bank on the oversight of the payment system; provides for its composition; provides for the appointment of a chairman; and gives the Central Bank the authority to make rules relevant to the operations and functions of the Eastern Caribbean Payment Council. Clause 10 of the Bill empowers the Central Bank to appoint members of the Eastern Caribbean Payment Council and provides for its composition. Clause 11 of the Bill requires a member who has a pecuniary or other interest in a matter before the Council to declare his or her interest to the Council and also provides for related matters. Clause 12 of the Bill empowers the Central Bank to issue rules or give directives in respect of the competencies, working procedures and timing of meetings of the Council and other matters relevant to the operations and functions of the Council.

Part III of the Bill makes provision for licensing and contains clauses 13 to 27. Clause 13 of the Bill prohibits a person from operating a system or providing a payment service without a licence to do so from the Central Bank and creates a corresponding offence which applies to both individuals and bodies corporate. Clause 14 of the Bill establishes four classes of licence and allows the Central Bank, after consultation with the Minister, to specify others. Clause 15 of the Bill provides for an application for a licence to be made to the Central Bank with the prescribed fee and form. Clause 16 of the Bill requires that the Central Bank responds to an application within three months of receiving the completed application. Clause 17 of the Bill requires the Central Bank to register the name of the licensee, issue the licence and publish the issuance. By clause 18 of the Bill, licences are non-transferable.

Clause 19 of the Bill authorises the Central Bank to place conditions on a licence (based in part on a risk-based assessment) that the Central Bank considers necessary and may also amend any condition of a licence by way of alteration, substitution, addition or other modification. Conditional upon every licence is that a person shall not, without the written authorisation of the Central Bank, act or continue to act as a director or officer of a licensee or as an agent acting on behalf of a licensee if that person is not a fit and proper person. Clause 20 of the Bill prohibits the provision of credit in respect of electronic money, rapid provision of final settlement after a payment instruction has been initiated in a system. By clause 21 of the Bill, a licence is valid for one year.

Clause 22 of the Bill provides that all licences must be reviewed annually upon payment of the prescribed fee. Clause 23 of the Bill empowers the Central Bank to suspend or revoke a licence issued under specified conditions. The Central Bank is required to notify the licensee, but notwithstanding this provision, the Central Bank may suspend or revoke a licence without notice if it is in the public interest or to protect the interest of participants or consumers. Clause 24 of the Bill empowers the Minister, on the recommendation of the Central Bank, to prescribe fees, which include a non-refundable application fee, licence fee and an annual renewal fee. Clause 25 of the Bill requires a licensee to display its licence on every primary place of business and on its website. Clause 26 of the Bill requires a licensee, licensed financial institution or credit union to promptly notify the Central Bank in the event of certain occurrences such as criminal proceedings, insolvency, and disciplinary action and must give prior notice to the Central Bank of any material changes to products and services for which it is licensed. The Central Bank may revise the prescribed minimum capital requirements based on the assessment of the risk profile of a licensee. Clause 27 of the Bill exempts licensed financial institutions and credit unions from the requirement to be licensed under section 13, but they are nonetheless subject to the operational, reporting and disclosure requirements.

Part IV of the Bill makes provision for the oversight of payment systems and contains clauses 28 to 37. Clause 28 of the Bill empowers the Central Bank to issue rules or directives to any payment system provider or operator and at any time adopt general standards and criteria for the conduct of payment services or the operation of systems. Clause 29 of the Bill empowers the Central Bank to monitor emerging and innovative payment systems and technologies; receive applications for the innovative payment system and technology to be reviewed, tested and monitored; and issue guidelines prescribing the mechanisms to review, test and monitor an application for the provision of an innovative payment system or technology. Clause 30 of the Bill requires licensees and participants to provide any information requested by the Central Bank in relation to its business or the business of its affiliates; make staff available for interviews with the Central Bank or any person appointed by the Central Bank where necessary; and creates an offence for failure to comply or if false or misleading information is provided.

Clause 31 of the Bill empowers the Central Bank, upon an application to the High Court, to enter and search premises in the company of a police officer. The High Court order may authorize the Central Bank or the police officer to make copies of any information, including electronic information, and inspect or interview staff. By clause 32 of the Bill, the Central Bank may conduct an audit or commission an independent auditor to conduct an audit of an operator, participant or payment service provider, annually or when issues arise that are of regulatory concern. Clause 33 of the Bill imposes a duty of confidentiality on the Central Bank regarding any information or document obtained during the exercise of its functions under the Act and sets out the exceptions. Clause 34 of the Bill sets out the conditions under which the Central Bank may publish information.

Clause 35 of the Bill prohibits a person from carrying out activities as an agent of a payment service provider prior to being authorised by the Central Bank; and where a payment service provider intends to provide a payment service to a consumer through an agent, the payment service provider is required to first make an application. The section also creates an offence for the unauthorized use of an agent. By clause 36 of the Bill, a licensee requires prior written approval from the Central Bank before outsourcing any of its operational functions. An operational function is regarded as important if a defect or failure in its performance would materially impair the continuing compliance of a licensee with the requirements of its licence, its financial performance or the soundness or continuity of its services. By clause 37 of the Bill, a licensee or third party agent is required to comply with the requirements of the Proceeds of Crime Act, No. 6 of 2012, and any guidelines, directives or rules issued or adopted by the Central Bank or any other relevant authority.

Part V of the Bill makes provision for the designation of payment systems and contains clauses 38 to 40. Clause 38 of the Bill sets out the factors that the Central Bank must take into consideration when designating a payment system and provides a thirty-day window within which an aggrieved party may appeal to the Central Bank. Clause 39 of the Bill sets out the criteria that must be considered by the Central Bank when designating payment systems. Clause 40 of the Bill empowers the Central Bank to revoke the designation order if the conditions under section 39 do not apply.

Part VI of the Bill provides the rules to regulate payment systems and contains clauses 41 to 43. Clause 41 of the Bill requires an operator to establish clear written rules for the governance, management and operations of the system which the operator is licensed to operate. These rules are subject to the review and recommendations of the Central Bank prior to the start of the operation of a system. By clause 42 of the Bill, the Central Bank may, by notice in writing, vary or invalidate the rules of the operator established under section 41, where it considers appropriate to do so. Clause 43 of the Bill mandates that rules on access to payment, clearing and settlements systems must not inhibit access to more than is necessary to safeguard against specific risks such as settlement risk, operational risk and business risk and to protect the financial and operational stability of the system.

Part VII of the Bill provides for consumer protection and contains clauses 44 to 47. Clause 44 of the Bill empowers the Central Bank to establish rules to ensure transparency of conditions, including fees and information requirements for payment services and the Central Bank is required to publish the rules on its website. By clause 45 of the Bill, a licensee, participant or agent who imposes a fee on any customer for executing a payment service is required to provide notice to the customer; and the Central Bank, in consultation with a licensee, participant or agent shall approve the maximum fee associated with any payment service. Clause 46 of the Bill requires that a licensee, a participant or agent discloses specified terms and conditions to a customer of a payment service involving that customer's account at the time the customer contracts for the payment service. In addition, a licensee, participant or agent is required to notify a consumer in writing at least 21 days prior to the effective date of any change in any term or condition of the consumer's that is required to be disclosed. By clause 47 of the Bill, a customer of a licensee, participant or agent who is aggrieved by any act or omission of a licensee, participant or agent may, subject make a complaint in writing to the licensee, participant or agent for remedial action. Revocation of a transfer deemed final shall not be revoked, reversed, or set aside, including by insolvency or bankruptcy proceedings or any other written law similar in purpose and effect. Clause 52 of the Bill provides that the rights and remedies of a licensee, participant, clearing house, central counter-party or any other third party in the system and the Central Bank with respect to collateral granted to it as security for a payment or the performance of an obligation incurred in a system shall not be affected by insolvency or bankruptcy proceedings or any other law similar in purpose and effect.

Part IX of the Bill provides for the winding up and administration of a system operator, participant or payment system provider and contains clauses 53 to 59. Clause 53 of the Bill requires a participant of a system to immediately notify the operator and requires the operator to immediately notify the other participants of the system where the participant is insolvent or is likely to become insolvent; has become or is likely to become unable to meet any or all of its obligations; or has suspended payments or compounded with its creditors.
